UMM To You

Winter, 1988

A publication for alumni and friends of the University of Minnesota, Morris

Enrollment Hits Historic Peak

Official enrollment figures released by the University of Minnesota show a record increase at UMM, where the number of students enrolled for fall quarter 1987 was up 10.9 percent to 1,967 students. An increase of 6.5 percent in the number of men registered for classes and of 14.9 percent in the number of women enrolled, make this the largest enrollment in UMM's 28 year history.

University-wide total enrollment figures show a .9 percent drop to 55,924. By campus, the newly released figures show Crookston down 6.3 percent at 1,136, Duluth up .9 percent at 7,365, the Twin Cities campus down 1.6 percent to 44,293, and the Waseca campus up 1.2 percent to 1,163.

What accounts for the dramatic increase at UMM? UMM Chancellor John Q. Imholte attributes it to several factors. "I think a major reason has been the positive national and local publicity we've received. It appears that UMM is no longer the 'best kept secret in Minnesota,'" he commented, citing recent articles in Changing Times and Money magazine which have included UMM among the best bargains in higher education, and among the emerging "Public Ivies." Although UMM has been in existence just a little over a quarter of a century, it has developed a reputation state-wide and nationally for providing a quality liberal arts education at an affordable cost. As Chancellor Imholte put it, "We have concentrated on doing what we do well, and that has provided a solid foundation on which to build."

UMM's sophisticated recruiting efforts have certainly played an important role in attracting the kind of students who will do well in UMM's rigorous academic atmosphere. Under the direction of Robert Vikander the UMM Admissions and Financial Aids staff has developed a very focused recruiting program targeted toward students who rank in the upper percentiles of their high school classes. "We have used our resources to attract those students who are most likely to succeed here, and that is why we have been successful," commented Vikander.

More than 30 percent of this fall's freshman class graduated in the top five percent of their high school class. Nearly fifty percent are from the top ten percent of their class and nearly seventy percent are from the top twenty percent of their class. It is not only the largest freshman class ever, but also one of the brightest.

UMM's Academic Scholarship Programs, which have been made possible through gifts to the campus, have been a strong inducement in attracting students. "Without the support of alumni, the residents of the area and region, UMM faculty and staff and others who have made contributions to these scholarships, we would not have been able to offer the kinds of scholarship opportunities here that have been an important aspect of our high ability student recruitment effort," notes Imholte. "We are grateful to everyone who has helped to make this possible."

Next fall $2,000 scholarships will be awarded to all entering freshmen students in the top 5 percent of their high school graduating class, $1,000 awards will be made to those in the top ten percent, and $500 awards will be made to those in the top twenty percent of their class. In addition, National Merit Scholars selecting UMM as their first college choice receive a minimum of free tuition for four years. Other inducements to attracting academically talented students include University of Minnesota Presidential Scholarships and the Morton S. Katz Outstanding Minority Scholarships.

The larger enrollment has presented a challenge to the campus, but assistance in meeting the demands of larger classes has been alleviated somewhat through additional financial allocations from the University's central administration. Residence Hall facilities have been reorganized to accommodate the number of students. "Things have worked out reasonably well this fall," Imholte noted.

UMM administrators feel that the campus is most effective with an enrollment of about 200 students less, however, and a gradual decrease in the student enrollment over the next five years is planned. The first step toward doing that will happen this winter, when the deadline for applying for fall quarter 1988 has been moved back to February 15. Students considering attending UMM are encouraged to submit their applications as early as possible in order to ensure that they will be considered for acceptance for fall quarter 1988.

New General Education Curriculum, Honors Program Strengthen UMM's Liberal Arts Tradition

Project PROSPER Emphasizes Liberal Arts

Freshmen entering UMM in the fall of 1988 will be the first students to sample UMM's new general education requirements. The new curriculum, known as Project PROSPER, is intended to strengthen UMM's liberal arts program by establishing course requirements introducing students to the "process" of liberal learning while encouraging them to expand their intellectual "perspectives" (PROcesS and PERspectives). The new requirements will be introduced gradually, with full implementation scheduled for fall of 1991.

The campus adopted its new framework for general education in February 1987, setting in motion a multi-staged process of implementation. The development of a common fall course for all new students is well underway, as is the development of new courses to fit the "expanding perspectives" criteria. A committee is working on the writing requirements of the new curriculum. The Campus Assembly is expected to act on these proposals during winter quarter, with implementation anticipated for fall quarter 1988. Committees of UMM faculty and students are also at work on new speaking and computing requirements scheduled for implementation in the fall of 1989. Other requirements will be addressed in the months ahead.

Work will begin later this year on a foreign language competency requirement which will go into effect in fall of 1991. With the addition of the foreign language requirement, years of campus (PROSPER Story Cont. p. 7)

Honors Program Challenges Students

Beginning next fall, UMM students will have a chance to intensify their studies by enrolling in UMM's new Honors Program. Designed to challenge UMM's high ability students, the Honors Program will offer additional opportunities for learning not now readily available at UMM.

The Honors Program will ultimately include honors courses, honors sections of the New Project PROSPER fall course, a series of co- and extra-curricular activities, and a senior honors project. Honors courses will be relatively small, encourage active rather than passive learning modes, and will rely mostly upon primary texts and materials. Students will engage in academic tasks appropriate to the course, including experimentation, creative expression, and written work. All UMM students are eligible to participate in the Honors Program, and enrollment is voluntary.

Following approval of the Honors Program proposal by the Campus Assembly last spring, an Honors Program Committee has been working to develop courses and implement the Program. According to William E. Campbell, coordinator of Academic Assistance Programs at UMM, it is difficult to predict how many students will elect to participate in UMM's honors courses next year. The long range goal is to enroll about 10% of the student population. Efforts to "recruit" incoming freshmen and continuing students to the Honors Program will begin during winter and spring of 1988.

From the Desk of: Jo Tate, President UMM Alumni Association

This is my first letter as President of the Alumni Association following my election at the Homecoming meeting in October. I am assuming the office at a very exciting time as we forge ahead into uncharted territory with decisions we have made about membership and the direction the Alumni Association should be heading.

As most of you are aware, we have introduced a fundamental change in the Alumni Association's membership program. The Alumni Association and UMM have combined their efforts to cultivate alumni support, and the result is a new Annual Giving Program for UMM. The Alumni Association will no longer conduct a separate membership drive, but will devote its efforts to assisting the Annual Giving Program for UMM. In return, any alumnus who contributes to the Annual Giving Program will become an Association member for that year. Please be sure to respond to the letter you have received asking for your support. Our goal is alumni participation — at whatever level you find appropriate. We need your help to make this a success.

We have also introduced an Alumni Network to UMM. Last spring you received a survey (and many thanks to all who returned them!) that included the option of volunteering for the Alumni Network. Approximately 500 alumni volunteered in a variety of capacities, ranging from helping with job placement to general networking with other alumni. Because the Alumni Relations office was in the process of converting to a new computer and database system, we are just getting the Network underway now. We apologize for the delay but plan to make up for lost time! Watch your mail for notices about networking plans. Contact Julie Bergh, chair of the Alumni Network, if you have ideas or wish to volunteer.

We are working on a variety of alumni projects. The year began with a reception hosted for parents during Freshman Orientation. I have attended this event for the past several years and am continually impressed by the many positive comments heard from parents about UMM. It's also enjoyable to field questions about life at UMM from a "first-hand" point of view.

At our Board of Directors meeting in December, we brainstormed about a number of new events. (See the Events Calendar in this issue for specifics.) We are looking for alumni who are not on the Board to help us plan events. Thanks to new event committee members Jan Yde, Deb Carlson, Lee Erickson, Joanne Otte, Dean Penk, Rick Reed, Sue Hendricks, and Tom Lydon for agreeing to help. If you are able to help, please call any member of the Alumni Board, or Maddy Maxeiner at UMM. We want your ideas!

On February 3, we will hold an alumni-student careers program at UMM. Titled "From College to Career: An Alumni Perspective," program participants are: Nancy Clemens, Julie Bergh, Jayne Solinger, Dick Slieter, and John Radick. UMM students Bill Lommel and Steve Moore are organizing the program.

We are at the forefront of a new phase in UMM alumni activity. The new membership format represents an exciting turning point in our history. Many of you have already demonstrated your enthusiasm by responding to the Annual Giving Program appeal, signing up to work on committees, and volunteering for the Network. There are many ways you can get involved — attending an alumni gathering, offering new ideas, and letting us know what's new with you. I hope you'll take part in this exciting venture!

Annual Giving Program In Full Swing

The 1987-88 Annual Giving Program is off and running. Under the leadership of volunteer chairman Rick Casey ('79), informational material was mailed to all alumni in November. This packet included a facts and information brochure with a message from Chancellor Jack Imholte, a reply envelope and a letter requesting support for UMM. A special thanks to all who have responded to this appeal.

The pace quickens in January when members of the Association Board will personally contact other alumni and ask for their participation. On March 14 and 15 a team of UMM students and graduates will telephone alumni and ask for contributions. Later, in the spring, a "proof" sheet listing year-to-date donors will be mailed providing another opportunity for those who have not responded to do so.

The Annual Giving Program continues through June 30, 1988. In order to be successful, this important undertaking needs the financial support of all alumni. Your tax deductible gift will help UMM and at the same time enroll you for one year's membership in the Alumni Association. Please be generous with your gift.

Alumni Association Elects Board and Officers

New alumni board members were officially welcomed at the Alumni Association annual meeting held October 17 during Homecoming weekend at UMM. Blane Dahl ('87), Scott Nelson ('84) and Kay Rakow (last attended '66) were installed to three-year terms following mail ballot election by members of the Association. Incumbent Sharon Doherty ('80) was re-elected to a second term.

Retiring directors Tom Mahoney ('74), Jim Odden ('71) and Linda Oslund ('67) were honored for their years of service. Having served two terms each, they will be missed by the Board of Directors. Linda served as President of the Association last year, and also served as Secretary in previous years. She succeeded Jim Odden as President, who had served for two years.

Continuing members of the Board of Directors are: Julie Bergh ('80), Rick Casey ('79), Dennis Happel ('69), Jack Kelly ('69), Richard Nadler ('69), Kelly Swanson ('83), Jo Tate ('73), and Lee Temte ('69). Linda Oslund retains voting privileges as immediate past President.

Ex-officio members of the Board for 1987-88 are: Kathy Kuntz, MCSA President, UMM; Lisa Rieke, CAC Chair, UMM; Jack Imholte, Chancellor, UMM; and Maddy Maxeiner, Alumni Coordinator, UMM.

The UMM Alumni Association is dedicated to the on-going promotion and support of UMM. The Board of Directors is elected by the membership to represent them in matters of governance, policy and direction.

Class Notes

CLASS OF 1964

Leonard Munstermann spent ten weeks in Europe (England, Italy, Switzerland, and Germany) delivering scientific papers, attending three international meetings, and collecting insects in the Hinterlands of Sardinia, the High Alps, and the Rhine Lowlands.

CLASS OF 1969

Jeanne (Baker) Driscoll and John Driscoll ('71) recently purchased Babcock Galleries in New York, NY.

CLASS OF 1970

Dale Nibbe joins the Benson Nursing Home as an Administrative Assistant.

CLASS OF 1971

Vickie (Schmidt) Hoffman recently accepted the position as teacher for the visually impaired in the Bemidji Public School System.

Karen Kraemer is a biology instructor in the Willmar School District.

Mona Kunkel is serving as Press and Public Relations Office Manager at Girls Nation for the American Legion Auxiliary, which sponsors annual week-long citizenship programs focusing on an in-depth study of the federal government for 100 high school seniors from every state in the union.

Jim Odden and Ann Carrott were married on June 13 in Alexandria. Jim, fifth grade teacher at Miliona Magnet School, was one of twenty educators who recently returned from a two-week tour of the Soviet Union, designed to promote intercultural understanding. Odden hopes to use his insight of Soviet culture to make his American students more aware of the similarities between children raised in America and those raised in the Soviet Union. As part of his follow-up project, Odden plans to create a curriculum to expose elementary students to Russian children's literature.

CLASS OF 1972

Doug Bengtson left the teaching field and took a sales position with Curtis 1000, selling custom printed business forms, letterhead, envelopes, and labels.

Craig Howard, M.D. joined the staff at the St. Croix Valley Clinic.

Tim Lannon has been named head boys basketball coach at Henning High School.

Dr. John F. Stock, currently in medical practice at Morris Medical Center and Stevens Community Memorial Hospital, was recently named to the Board of Directors of Citizens Bank in Morris.

Keith Swanson, Hoffman-Kensington football coach and athletic director, recently received the Franklin Life Select Coaching Award for 1987, with standards set by Scholastic Coach magazine. The awards are selected at three levels, gold, silver, and bronze, based on the number of career wins in an individual varsity sport. Swanson received the Silver Award.

CLASS OF 1973

William J. Nelson, Associate Professor and Division Director in Agricultural Business, Food Industry and Technology, and Home and Family Services at UMW, was recently elected to the Board of Trustees of the American Institute of Cooperation.

Brian Weber is married and the father of three children. He is practicing law at Weber Law Offices of Dodge Center and West Concord, MN, with an emphasis on agricultural law.

CLASS OF 1974

Paula (Berg) Brain has accepted a position as a science instructor with St. Kevin's Catholic School in Minneapolis.

Rachel Hoff has accepted the Elementary Librarian position at the Perham Public Schools.

Chancellor's Choice

Let me express warm thanks from all of us at UMM to the alumni who have supported our fund raising efforts. Believe me, much of the recent success we have enjoyed in recruitment of high ability students is due to your generosity and loyalty.

As you are undoubtedly aware, the annual fund raising effort for 1987-88 is now well underway. It is conducted by Daniel Fuchs, our new (since June) UMM Director of Development. If you have not done so already, I hope that you will consider helping us in this extremely important program. By the way, please bear with us if you are solicited a second time, even though you have made a recent contribution. There is an independent University wide telephone campaign that has begun recently asking for support for the Minnesota Campaign. If you are solicited by a Minnesota Campaign caller, please keep in mind that if you choose to contribute, your gift will be designated for UMM.

Enrollment for next year is running well ahead of where we were at this time last year. But as Bob Vikander, Director of Admissions has pointed out, there indeed should be a stronger increase than usual, since we will not be accepting applications after February 15. Our expectation is that between 900 and 1,000 applications received by February 15 will result in 550-600 new freshmen for fall quarter, 1988. Although we cannot be exact at this early date, it appears that the quality of the applicants thus far has remained high. We are noticing another new, more immediate happening as well. The number of former UMM students returning to the campus for winter quarter 1988 is a good deal larger than has been the case in previous years. Many of them are students who transferred from UMM to another University campus or to other institutions and are now coming back. We do not have a good reason as yet why this is occurring.

The major occupation of the campus at present is preparing for the initiation of the Project PROSPER and Honors Programs for next fall. PROSPER, of course, is the new general education program which will be phased in over a four-year period of time. Although there are a number of problems that need to be handled, we are assuming that the result will be well worth the time and dedication which many persons have expended on this significant effort. The introduction of these new programs should strengthen the overall liberal arts content of a student's experience at UMM.

Please keep in touch with us by letting us know what you are doing. We care about you.

Idzerda Is Second Driggs Lecturer

A tribute to long-time University of Minnesota, Morris faculty member Truman Driggs continued this year with the second annual O. Truman Driggs Lecture on October 19. "The U.S. Constitution: A Beacon and a Burden" was the topic of this year's distinguished speaker, Stanley J. Idzerda of the College of St. Benedict.

Currently professor of history at the College of St. Benedict, Idzerda is editor-in-chief of Lafayette in the Age of the American Revolution (Cornell University Press), the definitive collection of the Marquis de Lafayette's papers.

Dr. Idzerda has also served on the faculty and in academic administration at Michigan State University, Wesleyan University and Cornell University. His presidency at the College of St. Benedict (1968-74) served as a watershed in the development of that college through his leadership in the area of liberal learning. As a student of French history specializing in the interplay between the American and French experience, Professor Idzerda brought a distinctive perspective to the U.S. Constitution in this, its Bicentennial year. His talk also reflected the interest in American political traditions and the European experience that permeates the teaching of Truman Driggs.

O. Truman Driggs is a noted scholar and teacher, and the first recipient of the UMM Alumni Association Distinguished faculty award. The lectureship series in his name was established through gifts by UMM history alumni, friends, and UMM faculty, to endow a lectureship in his name.

Campus Welcomes New Faculty

UMM welcomed a number of new faces among its faculty and staff this fall, many replacing those who have recently left the University, or who are on leave or sabbatical.

In the Division of Education, Steven Carr joins the staff as head wrestling coach and instructor of physical education. Bruce Drewlow is a new instructor of elementary education, Steven Frederickson (UMM class of 1976) is an instructor of secondary education and Allan Handahl will teach health education.

In the Humanities Division, David Adams teaches art history and serves as coordinator of the Humanities Fine Arts Center Gallery. Mary Elizabeth Bezanson teaches speech communications. Vincente Cabrera teaches Spanish, and Briar Craig teaches studio art. In the English discipline, there are three new instructors: Sandra Muegge, Anne Phillips, and Mary Jean Port.

The Social Science Division has five new faces: Gordon Charles in sociology, Reza Fadaei-Tehrani in business-economics; Abdul Jabbar visiting professor of business economics; Daniel Stengel in political science and Timothy Welliver in history.

In the Division of Science and Mathematics newcomers include Paula Andenas in chemistry, John Buchl in mathematics, Francisco Hallo in computer science, and Clark Hoffman in mathematics.

Alumni Network Volunteers Serve UMM

Thank you to all those who responded to the Alumni Association Network sign-up. The response was tremendous. We are working feverishly to coordinate volunteers and opportunities. Those willing to assist CPPS can expect a special mailing in January. For alumni interested in general networking with each other, we are planning several get-togethers. (See Events Calendar for Network Kick-Off on March 24.) Those volunteering to contact legislators may be asked to help with the proposal for the Student Center. And there's more. If you have not previously joined the Alumni Volunteer Network and wish to do so, please contact Maddy in the office of Alumni Relations at UMM. Special thanks to those whose names appear below for volunteering to help UMM!

The twins are vying for spots on the U.S. Olympic Team in Greco-Roman Wrestling. Final Olympic Team trials will be held in June.

pus-wide discussion and committee work will culminate in the full implementation of Project PROSPER general education requirements.

The proposal to initiate a new general education curriculum at UMM emerged from an evaluation of existing requirements undertaken by a New Directions Task Force chaired by Professor Bert Ahern, history. Assisted by funds from a Title III grant and encouraged by University President Ken Keller's "Commitment to Focus" plan for the University, UMM has enjoyed a unique opportunity to strengthen its liberal arts foundation.

Coordination of the development and implementation of Project PROSPER curriculum is now in the hands of Professor Ted Uehling, philosophy, who assumed leadership when Ahern succeeded history professor Ted Underwood as social sciences division chair.

"Project PROSPER with its emphasis on a significantly revised general education program, keeps UMM in a leadership position in undergraduate liberal arts education," notes Uehling. "With an increased awareness of the importance of active student participation in the learning process, UMM is strengthening a liberal arts program which has already gained national attention. I am pleased to have the opportunity to be involved in the implementation of this exciting new phase in UMM's continued development."

Jon Mukand ('80) Explores Poetry Of Medicine

A new anthology of poetry, edited by UMM alumnus Dr. Jon Mukand (UMM '80) may help doctors and nurses better cope with the pain and suffering they see in patients.

The new volume entitled "Sutured Words: Contemporary Poetry About Medicine" and published by Aviva Press, Brookline, MA, is a combination of literary criticism, medical ethics and personal experiences of the editor. Included are more than 200 poems by nearly 200 poets representing many movements in contemporary poetry. More than a third are by women.

Mukand, whose professional career is a testimony of the value of liberal education, has a rich background in both literature and medicine. A chemistry and English major at UMM, he was a researcher in pharmacology at the Mayo Clinic, and after two years of medical school took a leave of absence to earn a Master of Arts degree in English at Stanford. His M.D., with honors in research, was at the Medical College of Wisconsin. He is currently a resident in Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at Boston University Medical Center.

His new book has drawn both critical acclaim and earned the appreciation of his colleagues. Howard Spiro, director of Humanities in Medicine at Yale, commented: "This is a marvelous collection, as full of wonder for medical students touching their first patient as for their teachers more hardened to pain. It should find a place in every hospital ward and floor, so that doctors and nurses can turn from the numbing reality of sickness to the poetry in this book that reminds us how our patients think and hope, pray and love. We owe a debt to Jon Mukand for putting together this extraordinary collection which will bring you to tears at times and may change you utterly."

"This book voices our awareness of mortality in the richness and variety of our humanity," said Albert Gelpi, chairman of the department of English at Stanford University. "The test of an anthology like this one lies in the taste and intelligence of the selection, and here the range of voices and subjects and moods is matched by the literary quality and diversity of the poems. This is a choice made by someone with the keen eye and ear of a poet and the discrimination of a literary critic. I hope, with Jon Mukand, that in articulating an awareness of pain these poems will serve in one way and another to allay it. All of us are the readers to whom these poems are addressed."

Mukand is recipient of a grant from the National Fund for Medical Education to write poetry about medicine. He received Scholarships from the University of Wisconsin, Stanford University, the Alworth Foundation, the Joseph Collins Foundation and the Breadloaf Writers' Conference. He also was a finalist in the Rhodes Scholarship competition to study English. His medical research has been presented at national meetings and a number of articles are in the process of publication in medical journals. His poetry has been published in Harbor Review, Medical Heritage, and the Journal of the American Medical Association.

The co-leader of a discussion group titled Viewing Medicine through the Arts, Dr. Mukand offers a seminar with the same title as the book at Boston University School of Medicine. He currently is working on a book of literary criticism titled The Physician in American Literature.

Sutured Words, priced at $18 (add $1.50 for postage and handling), is available by writing to Aviva Press, P.O. Box 1357, Brookline, MA 02146.

Plans For New Student Center Move Ahead

Progress is continuing toward a long-awaited UMM Student Center. Thanks to a bonding bill passed by the Minnesota legislature last spring, funds were made available for planning the facility and for hiring an architect to prepare schematic drawings. A separate request for construction funding must be submitted to the state legislature, which convenes in early February. If that request is successful, UMM could begin construction of the proposed center as soon as January 1989. If all goes well, UMM's first Student Center could open its doors in January, 1990.

A UMM Building Advisory Committee is working to finalize a detailed, written description of the Student Center which will be used to guide the architect eventually selected to draw the blueprints. If construction funding is approved, the architect will continue to develop the project. An architect is expected to be selected in February following submission of proposals to the State Designer Selection Board.

Plans for the proposed Student Center call for approximately 20,000 gross feet of new construction and include new study and lounge spaces, a banquet-ballroom facility, student office spaces, a campus information center, meeting rooms and additional food service areas. A link to Briggs Library offers comfortable passage between buildings, while preserving the mall on the east side of Edson Hall. The total cost of the Student Center, including the initial planning money, is projected at 4 million dollars.

"Although the Student Center project has been moving along well thus far, it is by no means a certainty," cautions UMM Chancellor Jack Imholte. "As always, the legislative session will be a tough one. Comments and letters of support for the Student Center to local legislators are welcome. You might emphasize that there is no student center or union facility on the campus, and that the last major construction project at UMM was the Humanities Fine Arts building back in the mid 1970's. Any and all help with the legislature will be deeply appreciated," indicated Imholte.

According to Gary McGrath ('68), Vice-Chancellor for Student Affairs at UMM, plans for the Student Center have advanced through the efforts of many UMM students over many years. "It is a real tribute to UMM students that every year, despite changes in student leadership, they've pursued this and carried the project forward. It's very exciting to work on this, for it fits in very well with our notion of a campus community."
